Comments: We are all one living on this planet. When we separate from our oneness with others the domination and torture of other creatures and even the destruction of the planet becomes possible. Our mistreatment of other animals is at the root of our mistreatment of other people and Earth. All domination's are related, and you cannot solve one without solving them all. Let us regain our true nature of being a part of a life giving system and treat all species with the respect we would want for ourselves. Our lives will benefit far more by doing this than by continuing the destructive path that we are on, destructive to the other animals and to our own nature. Please stop all testing on animals.
